Loseley Park finishes the race for Runaway Bride runner-up

Eagle Radio's Runaway Bride runner-up Julie Caldwell's disappointment is turned around by Loseley Park – with an offer of the use of the full venue completely FREE

Loseley Park has turned a great disappointment into great excitement for Julie Caldwell and her fiancé Dave Hills, by offering the use of its stately home venue for her wedding day, completely free of charge, after she lost Eagle radio station's Runaway Bride competition to Stella Morris.

And even though she misses out on the competition's wedding day prize, Julie can now look forward to enjoying her dream day at one of the UK's most prestigious wedding venues, and English stately home, Loseley Park near Guildford, Surrey.

The offer was made by Loseley in reaction to Julie's disappointment after she missed out on the first prize by just 34 miles in a race to get as far away from Guildford as possible.

Despite getting to Scotland with just £10 in 24 hours, in the competition organised by Eagle Radio, Julie still lost out to fellow Runaway Bride, and had to see her dreams of a wedding day prize vanish.

Now, Julie will be making the somewhat shorter journey from her home in Farnborough to Loseley Park to meet with owner Mike More-Molyneux and Wedding Events Manager, Nicky Rooney, when they will show her round the venue and arrange the details.

Eagle Radio Breakfast Show Presenter, Peter Gordon "The one unfortunate thing about great, compelling competitions like Runaway Bride is that we can only have one winner! I'm delighted that the team at Loseley Park are able to make such a lovely gesture for our fabulous runner up. I'm sure Julie and Dave will be delighted.

Michael More Molyneux commented, "Like most Eagle Radio listeners, we did feel quite sorry for Julie that she missed out on winning a fantastic wedding package by only a handful of miles, so we decided to offer her the chance to get married at Loseley Park. We are delighted that she and Dave have accepted and are very excited by the idea! They will be having their civil ceremony and reception here in December, and we all look forward to helping them plan their big day”.

About Loseley Park

Loseley House, situated in beautiful parkland, is a fine example of Elizabethan architecture. Civil weddings take place in the majestic Great Hall, the Drawing Room, or in the 17th Century Tithe Barn across the lawn. After the ceremony, wedding reception drinks and photography can be taken in the award-winning Walled Gardens which provide an idyllic and romantic setting for you and your guests to relax and enjoy.

The Loseley Estate was acquired by direct ancestors of the current owners at the beginning of the 16thC and Loseley House was built in the 1560s for Elizabeth I to stay in.

The Great Hall is the magnificent principal room of Loseley House. It contains exquisite panelling from Henry VIII's Nonsuch Palace and his banqueting tents, a minstrel's gallery, carvings by Grinling Gibbons, and a fine collection of royal and family portraits.
